

Biosketch
Joseph Patrick SEVILLA

Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health
United States

JP Sevilla is a Senior Economist at Data for Decisions, LLC, an economics consultancy, and a Research Associate at the Harvard Chan School of Public Health in the United States. He is a health economist and works on the theory and empirics of the economic evaluation of vaccines.

He has received research funding from Pfizer, GSK, Merck, Sanofi Pasteur MSD, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and the World Health Organization. He has a Ph.D. in Economics from Harvard University.